REX, FAMOUS HUNTING DOG OF THE EMPRESS.

crafts to the limit of endurance and speed. The race proved so dangerous that probably it will not be repeated for a long time—excepting by means of Mr. Howe's remarkable reproduction. At first the hydroplane is seen rising out of the water as gracefully as a bird. Then Renaux is seen putting it to some severe preliminary speed tests. At the same time the motor boats beneath him seem to be cleaving the water at express train speed. Finally the race starts and the hydroplane outdistances several motor boats, but when it approaches the 800-horsepower Ursula, it competes with a "foeman worthy of its steel." Then comes a contest representative of the very latest achievement of mankind in the conquest of sea and air. It is replete with all the thrill that could be desired.

OUTDOOR AMUSEMENTS.

With the return of "Honest" John McCloskey and his crew of baseball artists from their successful invasion of the north, the Motordrome, and Majestic park, bike track, the opening of the great stampede at the Fair grounds, Saltair beach, with its fine bathing, and Wadamere, the delegates to the N. E. A. can certainly find all the amusement they may desire.

The Skyscraper bunch had the most successful trip that any team representing Salt Lake has ever had. They won sixteen out of twenty-two games and but for rain would have won more, as three more games could have been played. The team is running along like a perfectly adjusted piece of machinery, well oiled and under full steam. Not a discordant note. As a mark of appreciation, the boys were met on their return at the Oregon Short Line depot, Tuesday morning, by a large aggregation of fans and a brass band, and autos and a picnic, with much noise and hilarity, forthwith took place. At the opening game, in the afternoon, with Ogden, "Honest" John was presented with a beautiful large horseshoe, filled with roses, which John thinks was a much for the team as himself. John never was selfish, anyhow. A great week day crowd turned out to see the opener of the five weeks' series, with Ogden, and saw the "hated" rivals beaten in one of the finest and snappiest games of the year. The Skyscrapers are surely a dependable bunch this year, and it is dollars to doughnuts that we cop the pennant.

An event that will go with us from the afternoon of the Fourth until July the 10th is the big stampede at the Fair grounds. This bids fair to be an event, and one that this community has never seen the like of before. To the few who have been permitted to look upon the inside and see the preparations going on, it is readily seen that it is no cot and dried affair, and that every event will be for blood, and that every stunt that will have to be gone through to win the money and championships will be no easy task. There will be former world's champions in the contests. Among them is Jim Massey, the champion bareback broncho rider of the world, having won this title at Calgary, Canada, Tex McLeod is another world's champion, winning the title of champion roper, also, at Calgary last year.
